

About the artist....

Drew Groves is a nature enthusiast. He has been exploring the natural world for many years through various levels of hiking and back country treks. His real passion is photographing the beauty that his adventures reveal, and sharing the images with others. As a science teacher living in New Hampshire, he often shares his photography with his students in hopes of enhancing their learning experiences. Additionally his photographs have been published and have served as inspiration for many painted works.

